according to whoever put this on youtube it's the best. I think it's the worst. It just gets worse and worse as time goes on.

I think you are right Casey. It's all getting a bit old hat now, and that wasn't the most polished performance I have ever seen.

I'm glad you agree. Whoever did it firt was a genius because it would have been so unexpected and fun, but now it's just pathetic.

Hi there,

I'm a Television Producer at Princess Productions and we're currently looking for Wedding Parties to take part in our new Sky1 series.

The series will see one of the nation's big-name professional dancers teaching people who think they can't dance to learn how to in just a few weeks.

We're currently looking for brides, grooms, bridesmaids or groomsmen who are part of a wedding party to give them the chance to learn some silky steps and put on a show-stopping performance at the wedding and surprise all the guests.

If you know of anyone who you think might be interested and has a wedding coming up between May-Aug 2012 please tell them to email us at learntodance@princesstv.com for more information.

Thanks,

Irfan

I think it turns the whole wedding ceremony into a farse. How can you watch them coming down the aisle like that and then expect them to take their wedding vows seriously. It is supposed to be a beautiful moment full of thoughtful promises, not a circus act!
