

Jamaica is one of the largest and most beautiful Caribbean islands. It is a land of white sands, blue waters and shimmering waterfalls, An island of diversity with an air of vibrancy and charm. Jamaica was made to be explored.

Jamaica is known to its population of the ‘Land of wood and water’ Jamaica does tropical like no other. The lilting, let-your-worries-go beats of reggae will capture you right from the start.

Part of the beauty of Jamaica is in its people. Warm, hospitable and rich in diversity. If you are out and about in Jamaica the locals will approach you and talk to you. This can be a little unusual at first and you may question what their motives are in doing this. Their motives are to chat and laugh with you, simple as that!

The characters of the Jamaican people are as loud as the flag they fly for their country. The flag of Jamaica recently made very recognisable by a certain person named Usain Bolt, came into existence on August 6, 1962, the original Independence Day of Jamaica. The Jamaica national flag comprises of the colors green, black, and gold. Significance of the flag of Jamaica lie in Jamaica Flag Colors, so that green is symbolic of hope, agricultural richness, and vegetation. Black is the symbol of strength and creativity of Jamaican people, and gold represents sunlight and Jamaica's natural wealth. All these Pan-African colors that are used in the national flag of Jamaica, pay honor to Jamaica's noteworthy African heritage Honeymooners will be dazzled by the beaches of its north and west coasts. Here, you’ll find white bays fringed by palms begging you to flop, drop and do nothing but relax with your new spouse. The waters are sublime too. Bath-warm and brilliantly turquoise, they’re home to coral reefs and exotic sea life. As for lifestyle – it’s deeply relaxing. The island radiates ‘irie’ – the Jamaican phrase for ‘it’s all good’ You’ll hear it and feel it everywhere you go. It sums up the infectious chilled-out vibe that underpins life here. And it goes in hand with the ever-smiling people and mesmerising reggae rhythms that drift from almost every street corner and beach bar.

aradise shores and Bob Marley grooves aside, there’s the modern side of Jamaica to think about too. Luxury resort hotels dot the sands. And in Montego Bay, Negril and Ocho Rios , shops bars and nightclubs provide endless fun just inches from the sands. When it comes to days out, Jamaica’s got lots to offer too. Bustling Kingston with its colonial mansions, quirkly museums and botanical gardens. Vibrant markets where smiley, dreadlocked vendors peddle the signature red-green- and gold trinkets of the island’s Rastafarian culture. And inland, magical waterfalls and banana plantations sweeping up to the sultry Blue Mountains.

Negril has always been the favoured spot for honeymooners. With its Coconut-white beaches lapped by luminous blue waters. And blazing rays of sunshine peeping through palm fronds. Its bound to be a winner. If you want to explore and see Jamaica in all its glory however, you will probably be better placed to book your stay in Ocho Rios.

Ocho Rios is the base for many an excursion. The Dunnes river falls are here as is Mystic Mountain, home to countless activities. Ocho Rios is also an excellent base to get to East of the island where you can bike ride around the Blue Mountains, visit the volcanic east coast and swim in the Blue Lagoon. All these activities are practically impossible to do in one day from Negril.

Jamaica has a tropical climate with hot and humid weather at sea level. The higher inland regions have a more temperate climate. The average annual temperature is between 80-86°F (27-30°C). The coolest months are January and February and the temperature starts going back up in March. July and August are typically the hottest months. Temperature variations between summer and winter is about 10 degrees.

The rainiest months in Jamaica are normally May-June and September-October This so-called rainy season is characterized by brief afternoon showers followed by sunshine. Look at it as a welcome break from the tropical heat!

The official currency of Jamaica is the Jamaican Dollar. We would advise honeymooners to use American Dollars however. Most things (if not all) that you will see for sale are displayed in American Dollars. They are easier to deal with and even if you pay with Jamaican Dollars, they will often give you your change in American Dollars anyway.

Do order a lot of one dollar bills to take with you to tip drivers, bell boys, and anyone you wish to thank for their service. It is not necessarily expected, but the worth of a couple of dollars means little to us - but an awful lot to the low paid Jamaicans, so do show your appreciation.
